

Over the past year, between ANKORS annual general meetings, Rosie Benincasa's Food Program provided meals to a total of 3,220 individuals in Cranbrook B.C. This number reflects the continued and growing need for food support in our community, as well as the dedication of our volunteers and staff who make this service possible. Our ability to meet this demand has been greatly supported by the generosity of the Cranbrook Food Bank and the Food Recovery Program, both of which have consistently contributed essential food items that help sustain our efforts. The Food Program remains a vital resource for individuals and families facing food insecurity, offering not only nourishment but also a sense of dignity and connection. Looking ahead, our goal is to attain increased funding for the program so we can continue to expand and respond effectively to the rising levels of food insecurity in our community.
